

“How I See It”

Riverside Public Library & UCR ARTSblock to offer Photo Summer Program for Teens

(Riverside) May 28, 2008 - If you enjoy photography, writing and visual arts, check out the Riverside Public Library's 10-week Teen Photography Program this summer. The project will document the area surrounding the Main Library downtown using digital photography and the written word as well as local history. You get to decide what you would like to photograph, write about and discover. You will also be able to learn about the local history of downtown with a professor from UCR.

In addition to learning cool new stuff, you will also gain some sweet new skills! The library will provide digital cameras for you to use and access to the UCR California Museum of Photography's state of the art digital media lab. At the end of the 10-week program an exhibit will take place at the Main Library where you can show off your photos and voice your views to the community. There will also be an online exhibit created by the California Council for the Humanities to showcase the exhibit.
